1 BACKGROUND

3 In June of 2013, Plaintiff filed claims for disability insurance
4 benefits and supplemental security income, asserting an inability to 5 work since February 28, 2010 (Administrative Record ("A.R.") 242, 6 250). Plaintiff later amended her alleged disability onset date to 7 December 22, 2012, because the Administration had denied Plaintiff's
8 prior application for disability benefits on December 21, 2012 (A.R.
9 34-35).

11 An Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ") examined the medical record
12 and heard testimony from Plaintiff and a vocational expert (A.R. 9-13 470). The ALJ found Plaintiff has severe physical and mental 14 impairments but retains the residual functional capacity to perform a 15 reduced range of light work (A.R. 15-23). With regard to Plaintiff's 16 mental limitations, the ALJ determined that Plaintiff "is limited to 17 unskilled work; she is precluded from fast-paced work like assembly 18 line work or conveyor belt work; and she is limited to occasional 19 public contact" (A.R. 18). The ALJ also believed that Plaintiff must 20 avoid "concentrated noise such as that found in a construction
21 workplace or loud restaurant" (id.)
22

23 In reliance on the testimony of the vocational expert, the ALJ
24 found Plaintiff can perform work that exists in significant numbers in 25 the national economy (A.R. 24-25). The ALJ deemed Plaintiff's
26 contrary testimony not fully credible (A.R. 19-23). The Appeals
27 Council denied review (A.R. 2-4).

If the evidence can support either outcome, the court may not substitute its judgment for that of the ALJ. But the Commissioner's decision cannot be affirmed simply by isolating a specific quantum of supporting evidence. Rather, a court must consider the record as a whole, weighing both evidence that supports and evidence that detracts from the [administrative] conclusion.

DISCUSSION

After consideration of the record as a whole, Defendant's motion is granted and Plaintiff's motion is denied. The Administration's findings are supported by substantial evidence and are free from material¹ legal error. Plaintiff's contrary arguments are unavailing.

The ALJ found that, despite Plaintiff's limitations, Plaintiff can perform work existing in significant numbers in the national economy. Notwithstanding any ultimately harmless errors possibly committed by the ALJ, substantial evidence supports this decisive finding.

The vocational expert testified, inter alia, that there exist 426,000 "marker" jobs in the national economy (A.R. 56). The ALJ properly could rely on this testimony as proving the existence of significant numbers of "marker" jobs. See Gutierrez v. Commissioner, 740 F.3d 519, 529 (9th Cir. 2014); Barker v. Secretary of Health and Human Services, 882 F.2d 1474, 1478-80 (9th Cir. 1989). Moreover, by not challenging this testimony before the ALJ, Plaintiff waived her right to do so. See Shaibi v. Berryhill, 2017 WL 3598085, at *6 (9th Cir. Aug. 22, 2017) ("when a claimant fails entirely to challenge a vocational expert's job numbers during administrative proceedings before the agency, the claimant waives such a challenge on appeal at

1 least when that claimant is represented by counsel").

3 Contrary to Plaintiff's arguments, substantial evidence supports
4 the conclusion that the job of "marker" may be performed by a person
5 limited to the ability to perform unskilled "Level 2 reasoning"² jobs
6 not involving fast paced work or more than occasional public contact
7 and not involving a "concentrated noise environment." The vocational 8 expert essentially so testified in response to questioning by the ALJ
9 and Plaintiff's counsel (A.R. 55-59). "[A]t least in the absence of 10 any contrary evidence, a VE's [vocational expert's] testimony is one 11 type of job information that is regarded as inherently reliable.

12 . . ." Buck v. Berryhill, 2017 WL 3862450, at *7 (9th Cir. Sept. 5, 13 2017); see Bayliss v. Barnhart, 427 F.3d 1211, 1218 (9th Cir. 2005) 14 ("A VE's recognized expertise provides the necessary foundation for 15 his or her testimony. Thus, no additional foundation is required").

16
17 Plaintiff may argue that the vocational expert's testimony
18 conflicted with the Dictionary of Occupational Titles ("D.O.T."). At 19 least with respect to the job of "marker," no material conflict
20 existed. "For a difference between an expert's testimony and the 21 [D.O.T.'s] listings to be fairly characterized as a conflict, it must 22 be obvious or apparent." Gutierrez v. Colvin, 844 F.3d 804, 808 (9th 23 Cir. 2016). There existed no "obvious or apparent" difference between 24 the vocational expert's testimony and the D.O.T. which was material to

26 ² Level 2 reasoning requires the worker to "[a]pply
27 commonsense understanding to carry out detailed but uninvolved
28 written or oral instructions." Dictionary of Occupational Titles Appendix C. The ALJ did not find that Plaintiff is limited to Level 2 reasoning (A.R. 18).

1 the conclusion Plaintiff can perform the job of "marker." For 2 example, although Plaintiff argues that her preclusion from work in an 3 environment of "concentrated noise" prevents her from performing the 4 job of "marker," the D.O.T. describes the noise level of the "marker"
5 job environment as only "moderate." D.O.T. § 209.587-034.

7 Contrary to Plaintiff's arguments, substantial medical evidence
8 supports the conclusion Plaintiff can perform the job of "marker"
9 despite her mental limitations. The consultative examining 10 psychologist opined that Plaintiff "would be able to understand,
11 remember and carry out short, simplistic instructions with no
12 difficulty" and would have only "mild difficulty to understand,
13 remember and carry out detailed and complex instructions" (A.R. 389).
14 State agency review physicians opined Plaintiff can understand, 15 remember and carry out simple job instructions, maintain attention and 16 concentration and perform work that requires direction from others
17 (A.R. 123, 156). Plaintiff stresses the contrary opinions of Patricia 18 E. Prickett, M.F.T., but Ms. Prickett is not an acceptable medical 19 source under the applicable regulations. See 20 C.F.R. §§
20 404.1513(a), (d)(1).³ In any event, it was the prerogative of the ALJ
21 to resolve conflicts in the medical evidence. See Lewis v. Apfel, 236
22 F.3d 503, 509 (9th Cir. 2001). When evidence "is susceptible to more 23 than one rational interpretation," the Court must uphold the 24 administrative decision. See Andrews v. Shalala, 53 F.3d 1035,
25 1039-40 (9th Cir. 1995); accord Thomas v. Barnhart, 278 F.3d 947, 954
26 (9th Cir. 2002); Sandgathe v. Chater, 108 F.3d 978, 980 (9th Cir.

27
28 ³ This version of the regulations applies to claims filed before March 27, 2017.

1 1997). The Court will uphold the ALJ's rational interpretation of the 2 evidence in the present case notwithstanding any conflicts in the 3 record.

5 Other evidence also supports the ALJ's conclusion Plaintiff
6 retains the capacity to work notwithstanding her mental limitations.
7 Plaintiff's mental problems reportedly originated from a brain injury
8 suffered in 1979 (A.R. 39). Nevertheless, Plaintiff worked more than 9 ten years thereafter (A.R. 38). A claimant's demonstrated ability to 10 work despite an impairment militates against a conclusion of 11 disability. See Bray v. Commissioner, 554 F.3d 1219, 1227 (9th Cir.
12 2009); Johnson v. Bowen, 864 F.2d 340, 347-48 (5th Cir. 1988); Ray v.
13 Bowen, 813 F.2d 914, 917 (9th Cir. 1987); Baker v. Gardner, 388 F.2d 14 493, 494 (5th Cir. 1968). Plaintiff reportedly looked for work even 15 after leaving her last job in 2010 (A.R. 38-39). Her job search may 16 well have occurred after her original February 28, 2010 alleged onset 17 date. The fact that a claimant has sought out employment can weigh 18 against a finding of disability. See Bray v. Commissioner of Social 19 Security Admin., 554 F.3d at 1227; see also Ghanim v. Colvin, 763 F.3d
20 1154, 1165 (9th Cir. 2014) ("continued receipt" of unemployment
21 benefits can cast doubt on a claim of disability); but see Webb v.
22 Barnhart, 433 F.3d 683, 688 (9th Cir. 2005) ("That Webb sought
23 employment suggests no more than that he was doing his utmost, in 24 spite of his health, to support himself"). Although the evidence is 25 somewhat conflicting, Plaintiff herself stated she is capable of 26 handling a checking account (A.R. 61). It is also significant that 27 Plaintiff conceded her psychiatric medications help her "a lot" (A.R.
28 48; see A.R. 40, 53). Impairments that can be controlled effectively

1 with medication are not disabling. See Warre v. Commissioner, 439
2 F.3d 1001, 1006 (9th Cir. 2006).⁴

4 Contrary to Plaintiff's apparent arguments, the ALJ's residual 5 functional capacity assessment and the hypothetical questioning of the 6 vocational expert need not have included all conceivable limitations
7 that a favorable interpretation of the record might suggest to exist -
8 only those limitations the ALJ actually found to exist. See, e.g.,
9 Bayliss v. Barnhart, 427 F.3d at 1217-18; Rollins v. Massanari, 261
10 F.3d 853, 857 (9th Cir. 2001); Magallanes v. Bowen, 881 F.2d 747, 756-
11 57 (9th Cir. 1989); Martinez v. Heckler, 807 F.2d 771, 773-74 (9th 12 Cir. 1986). Given the evidence previously discussed, there was no
13 material omission from either the residual functional capacity
14 assessment or the questioning of the vocational expert.

15
16 Finally, the ALJ did not materially err⁵ in discounting
17 Plaintiff's credibility. An ALJ's assessment of a claimant's
18 credibility is entitled to "great weight." Anderson v. Sullivan, 914
19 F.2d 1121, 1124 (9th Cir. 1990); Nyman v. Heckler, 779 F.2d 528, 531
20 (9th Cir. 1985). Where the ALJ finds that the claimant's medically 21 determinable impairments reasonably could be expected to cause some 22 degree of the alleged symptoms of which the claimant subjectively
23 complains, any discounting of the claimant's complaints must be

24
25 ⁴ Plaintiff sometimes has gone off her medications (A.R.
26 382).

27 ⁵ Under the circumstances of this case, the boilerplate
28 language in the last paragraph on page 19 of the Administrative Record constitutes immaterial error. See Laborin v. Berryhill, 2017 WL 3496031 (9th Cir. Aug. 16, 2017).

1 supported by specific, cogent findings. See Berry v. Astrue, 622 F.3d
2 1228, 1234 (9th Cir. 2010); Lester v. Chater, 81 F.3d 821, 834 (9th
3 Cir. 1995); but see Smolen v. Chater, 80 F.3d 1273, 1282-84 (9th Cir.
4 1996) (indicating that ALJ must offer "specific, clear and convincing"
5 reasons to reject a claimant's testimony where there is no evidence of 6 malingering).⁶ An ALJ's credibility findings "must be sufficiently 7 specific to allow a reviewing court to conclude the ALJ rejected the 8 claimant's testimony on permissible grounds and did not arbitrarily
9 discredit the claimant's testimony." Moisa v. Barnhart, 367 F.3d 882, 10 885 (9th Cir. 2004) (internal citations and quotations omitted); see 11 Social Security Ruling 96-7p (explaining how to assess a claimant's
12 credibility), superseded, Social Security Ruling 16-3p (eff. March 28, 13 2016).⁷ As discussed below, the ALJ stated sufficient reasons for 14

15 ⁶ In the absence of an ALJ's reliance on evidence of 16 "malingering," most recent Ninth Circuit cases have applied the 17 "clear and convincing" standard. See, e.g., Brown-Hunter v.
18 Colvin, 806 F.3d 487, 488-89 (9th Cir. 2015); Burrell v. Colvin, 19 775 F.3d 1133, 1136-37 (9th Cir. 2014); Treichler v.
20 Commissioner, 775 F.3d 1090, 1102 (9th Cir. 2014); Ghanim v.
21 Colvin, 763 F.3d at 1163 n.9; Garrison v. Colvin, 759 F.3d 995,
22 1014-15 & n.18 (9th Cir. 2014); see also Ballard v. Apfel, 2000
23 WL 1899797, at *2 n.1 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 19, 2000) (collecting 24 earlier cases). In the present case, the ALJ's findings are 25 sufficient under either standard, so the distinction between the 26 two standards (if any) is academic.

27 ⁷ Social Security Rulings ("SSRs") are binding on the 28 Administration. See Terry v. Sullivan, 903 F.2d 1273, 1275 n.1 (9th Cir. 1990). The appropriate analysis in the present case would be substantially the same under either SSR 96-7p or SSR 16-
3p. See R.P. v. Colvin, 2016 WL 7042259, at *9 n.7 (E.D. Cal.
Dec. 5, 2016) (observing that only the Seventh Circuit has issued a published decision applying Ruling 16-3p retroactively; also stating that Ruling 16-3p "implemented a change in diction rather than substance") (citations omitted); see also Trevizo v.
Berryhill, 2017 WL 4053751, at *9 n.5 (9th Cir. Sept. 14, 2017)

1 deeming Plaintiff's subjective complaints less than fully credible.

3 The ALJ properly pointed out Plaintiff's level of admitted
4 activities, which appears inconsistent with Plaintiff's claimed
5 disability (A.R. 18, 22). Plaintiff admittedly shops, cleans the 6 house, cooks, does laundry, goes out for walks, gets along with family
7 and friends, goes to church and goes to the movies (A.R. 42, 304-05).
8 Such activities can undercut a claimant's assertion of an inability to 9 work. See, e.g., Molina v. Astrue, 674 F.3d 1104, 1112 (9th Cir.
10 2012); Stubbs-Danielson v. Astrue, 539 F.3d 1169, 1175 (9th Cir.
11 2008); Thomas v. Barnhart, 278 F.3d at 958-59.

12
13 The ALJ also stressed the conservative nature of Plaintiff's
14 medical treatment (A.R. 19-22). The conservative nature of a 15 claimant's treatment properly may factor into the evaluation of the 16 claimant's credibility. See Tommasetti v. Astrue, 533 F.3d 1035, 17 1039-40 (9th Cir. 2008); Parra v. Astrue, 481 F.3d 742, 751 (9th Cir.
18 2007), cert. denied, 552 U.S. 1141 (2008); Osenbrock v. Apfel, 240
19 F.3d 1157, 1166 (9th Cir. 2001).

20
21 The ALJ also relied on the objective medical evidence to conclude 22 that Plaintiff's functional limitations are not as profound as 23 Plaintiff claims (A.R. 18-23). While a lack of objective medical 24 evidence to corroborate the claimed severity of alleged symptomatology
25 cannot form the "sole" basis for discounting a claimant's credibility,
26 the objective medical evidence is still a relevant factor. See Burch

27
28 ⁷(...continued)
(SSR 16-3p "makes clear what our precedent already required").

1 v. Barnhart, 400 F.3d 676, 680 (9th Cir. 2005); Rollins v. Massanari,
2 261 F.3d at 857.

4 To the extent one or more of the ALJ's stated reasons for 5 discounting Plaintiff's credibility may have been invalid, the Court
6 nevertheless would uphold the ALJ's credibility determination under 7 the circumstances presented. See Carmickle v. Commissioner, 533 F.3d
8 1155, 1162-63 (9th Cir. 2008) (despite the invalidity of one or more
9 of an ALJ's stated reasons, a court properly may uphold the ALJ's
10 credibility determination where sufficient valid reasons have been 11 stated). In the present case, the ALJ stated sufficient valid reasons
12 to allow this Court to conclude that the ALJ discounted Plaintiff's
13 credibility on permissible grounds. See Moisa v. Barnhart, 367 F.3d
14 at 885. The Court therefore defers to the ALJ's credibility
15 determination. See Lasich v. Astrue, 252 Fed. App'x 823, 825 (9th
16 Cir. 2007) (court will defer to Administration's credibility
17 determination when the proper process is used and proper reasons for 18 the decision are provided); accord Flaten v. Secretary of Health &
19 Human Services, 44 F.3d 1453, 1464 (9th Cir. 1995).⁸

21 ///

22 ///

23 ///

24
25 ⁸ The Court need not and does not determine herein
26 whether Plaintiff's subjective complaints are credible. Some 27 evidence suggests that those complaints may be credible.
28 However, it is for the Administration, and not this Court, to evaluate the credibility of witnesses. See Magallanes v. Bowen, 881 F.2d at 750, 755-56.
